DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

HA-16

A number of additions have been made to the mill structure. Large bins, hoppers and storage buildings have been attached to the western side within the past 30 years, and a stubby, shed-roofed office wing protrudes from the eastern extreme. The original mill faces Deer Creek, which parallels Walter's Mill Road to the north. The mill rests upon a high stone foundation that is into a hillside and exposed on the northern side. It is a two-story structure, with walls of vertical siding. The structure is four bays across and two deep, with louver holes oriented east-west and near the gable-flank. The windows are new 1 X 1's, with a few 6 X 6 sashes on the eastern facade at the cellar level. A single 2 X 2 opening is on the northern facade near the western end. There are four board-and-batten entrances. One is located on the northern side of the cellar, with a door directly above it on the first floor. A similar arrangement can be found on the southern aspect, with a door on the first floor and one above it on an upper level. The roof is a gable-front, but the pitches are uneven in a "saltbox" configuration. The roof itself is made of slate and has wide eaves. There is a small brick chimney at the northeastern corner of the roof. Originally, a long viaduct pipe ran from Cabbage Run, southwest of the mill, and led to an interior water wheel. The runoff then passed through a sluice that crossed Walter's Mill Road and emptied into the Deer Creek.

The Interior

The cellar has extremely thick stone walls, with wood lintels above the windows and doors. The iron wheel, which has a diameter of between sixteen and twenty feet, is located near the western wall, and a pegged frame supports the water sluice from the old mill pond. The ceiling supports are a series of beams and crosstimbbers. Also in the cellars are hoppers, scales and the gears and belts that turned the grindstones when the mill was water-powered. The first floor contains more chutes and hoppers, with the interior walls being mortised joints. More modern blowers, dryers and separators have been emplaced. An old grain inspector, with magnets to remove metal, is still intact. The top floor has silk screen sifters and storage bins. The beams are hand-cut and pegged.

The Cabin HA-18

This structure is located on a hillside directly behind Walter's Mill and is in a pronounced state of decay. It is single-story, with walls of interlocked log, covered with lath. There is but one opening on each side, and there is an attic opening on the western end. The windows are boarded and an uncovered doorway is along the southern wall. The badly-deteriorated roof is gable-flank and tin, and a stucco-covered stone and brick chimney is sited at the western end of the building. Inside, there is one room on each floor, the lower one having old plaster on the walls. The attic detail includes pegging and hand-split lath.

BUILDER/ARCHITECT

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

In 1752, John and Samuel Forwood, sons of William and Mary Forwood of New Castle County, Delaware, settled on Deer Creek. They jointly purchased land from Benjamin and Charity Colegate; 110 acres of Maiden's Meadow, 20 acres of St. Annes', 100 acres of Colegate's Contrivance and 25 acres of Colegate's Addition. John and Samuel erected a mill on their property prior to 1775. The 1783 Tax List declared them as jointly owning a grist mill as well as the following tracts:

Samuel Forwood

George's Fancy 94 acres
Henry's Pleasure 50
Colegate's Contrivance 100
Maiden's Meadow 19
Forwood's Purchase 12
Colegate's Addition 18
Robert's Chance 60
Webb's Discovery 11½

John Forwood

Maiden's Meadow 91 acres
John's Friend 4
Forwood's Purchase 32
John's Addition 25
Homer 20
John's Adventure 49
Colegate's Addition 7

In 1790, John Forwood transferred his interest in the mill, along with 28 acres, to Samuel. In 1794, Samuel Forwood deeded the mill to his son, Samuel Forwood, Jr. In 1804 it was sold to Clement Green and from him it passed to Joseph Parker in 1823. In 1846, the Parker trustees conveyed the mill to John Smith, and the structure has remained in the Smith family ever since. An advertisement in the Bel Air Times in 1886 refers to the place as Greenspring Mill and reported that John S. Smith had installed a cob crusher. The original mill burned in 1900 and was later rebuilt. The 1878 Martenet Map still refers to the place as Forwood's Mill. An unusual feature is the overshot wheel, located inside of the building, being fed from one stream while emptying into another. The water-powered grindstones were used commercially until 1972, when Hurricane Agnes destroyed the dam and the millrace.

3. ALJ 23 142 11/16/1869

Grantor: Jonathan Warner
Grantee: Edward M. Paxson

ALJ 6 14 4/18/1855

Grantor: William Warner
Grantee: Jonathan Warner
Purchased at a sale made by Henry D. Farnandis, trustee on 7/18/1843. Sold because of an equity case.

HD 5 77 3/18/1841

Equity : Otho Scott, use of Benjamin Boarman, complainant
John C. Forwood, defendant.

HD 18 380 1935

Grantor: In September of 1835, John C. Forwood owed $1,000 to
Grantee: Boarman. To settle this debt he conveyed to the complainant all the lands devised to him, John C., by his father, John. This consisted of 350 acres. He also sold the lands devised by his father, John, to Samuel Forwood, which in turn, Samuel Forwood devised to his nephew, John C. Forwood. This consisted of 312 acres.

Farnandis broke the property up into smaller parcels for sale. The property purchased by William Warner was the second parcel sold.

B 5 187 5/15/1834

Grantor: Last Will and Testament of John Forwood
Grantee: John C. Forwood, his son
Acreage: "all that part of my farm whereon they and I now live which lies on the south side of said creek..."

ALJ F 343 4/12/1785

Grantor: Samuel Forwood
Grantee: John Forwood
Acreage: Forwood's Purchase which borders on Colgate's Contrivance and consists of 45 acres. Samuel received this land through Patent on 6/8/1761.

JLG A 356 4/26/1777

Grantor: This was a deed partition for the lands jointly owned
Grantee: by Samuel and John Forwood. Basically the lands were divided in such a way that Samuel would own the west side of the property and John would own the east side.

AL 1 384 11/12/1774

Grantor: Samuel Forwood
Grantee: John Forwood
This was an Arbitration... "a dispute concerning some land laid out for a mill seat by Daniel Preston by and with consent of the said parties and also all other disputes concerning the division of all lands by them jointly purchased."
It seems that the Mill Seat "by Green Spring Run containing 22 1/2 acres" and the lands which they "now possess and dwell on" would be equally divided with the west side going to Samuel and the east to John.

Samuel and John Forwood received their land from Benjamin and Charity Colgate on 6/11/1752. The land conveyed to the Forwoods included the following: 110 acres Maiden's Meadow, 26 acres St. Omar's, 100 acres Colgate's Contrivance, 25 acres. Colgate's Addition.
